

“ON” Framework 2

Its Not What You Talk About, Its How You Talk About It

What the framework states:

Don't worry about finding interesting things to talk about. Just make whatever you're talking about fun and interesting. Take the pressure of yourself to have the perfect thing to talk about.

What this means:

When you are REAL and use ANY conversation topic as chance to give a girl a glimpse of you, you're able to make even the most mundane topics interesting.

Big Ideas:

Give Her a Glimpse of You

Use Conversations to Express Your Humanity and Your Realness

Bring Her Into Your Life

Realness is Attractive Because Its Comfortable. Comfort is Sexy

It Shows a Comfort Level in You, That Will Bring Out a Comfort Level in Her

Make Whatever You Do Sound Interesting and Fun

Examples:

Here is an example of giving a girl a glimpse of your personality, using a completely mundane topic:

“It was so embarrassing, I’m walking today in a pair of flip flops, and I sort of stub my toe into the sidewalk, and trip forward, and now I’m like frozen, because I really want to look around and see if anyone saw, but I know that just makes it worse, so I’m like trying to figure out if I should just be casual and keep walking like nothing happened, or show I have a sense of humor and kind of laugh it off... So what’s the right move there? What’s the cool way to handle it?

The Reality of What I Just Said.

I used a very mundane, ordinary thing like stubbing my toe, a way to give her a glimpse inside my mind, and show her that I’m comfortable just being myself around her

Homework:

Every Night Ask Your Self “What Did I Do Today?”

Then Answer in a Form of an Anecdote that expresses your personality, and makes even something mundane you did seem worth talking about